The Right of Burial in Consecrated

An interesting controversy has sprung up at Toledo, Ohio, involving the right of a person who dies out of the communion of the Catholic Church to be buried in a lot owned by relatives in a Consecrated Cemetery. The case at Toledo is that of a Mrs. WYNN, recently deceased, whose husband sought to bury her remains in a Catholic cemetery, but was forbidden to do so by the Priest in ion. charge, on the ground that she was not in communion with the Church at the time of her death, and therefore not entitled to Christian burial. It seems that the mother of Mrs. WYNN was the owner of a lot in said cemetery, and this lot she had conveyed to her children for a family burying place. Notwithstanding this conveyance, however, and also notwithstanding Mrs. WYNN had a brother already interred in the lot, the Priest did not recognize her right to burial therein, and on the morning of the day fixed for the funeral informed her husband by note that he should oppose the burial by force if necessary. The husband not wishing to witness a scandalous scene over the body of his wife, gave way for the time, and had the remains temporarily deposited in a vault, after which he instituted legal pro- third term?" said Susan Jane to her ceedings to enforce his rights. The Priest answers the complaint of Mr. WTNN by reciping that the complex is a part of the replying that the cemetery is a part of the charine sister, "It's because you're one Catholic Church legal property at Toledo, too many." and as such was set apart for burial purposes under the rules of the Church, one of dressed when she was looking out for her udes from burial all person who die out of its communion. The deceased had ceased to be a communicant in the Church, and was therefore not privileged to be buried in its grounds. At the time of her death the rites of the Church over her dead body were refused for the same reason. As a part of his answer he cites the Court to the following canon of the Church:

That every one of the faithful of both sexes, after they come to the years of discretion, shall in private faithfully con-less all their sins, at least once a year, to their own pastor, and take care to fuifil, to the best of their power, the penance enjoined upon them; receiving reverently, least at Easter, the Sacrament of the Eucharist, unless, perhaps, by the counsel of their pastor, for some reasonable cause, they judge proper to abstain from it for a time; otherwise let them be excluded from the Church while living, and when they die be deprived of Christian burial.

and men are required to remain in their quarters during the day of election, unless called out to prevent a conflict between armed bodies, or by orders of superior military authority.
